

EVERYDAY RESOURCES FOR FAMILIES WITH A NEWBORN BABY

A QUESTIONNAIRE FOR IDENTIFYING THE FACTORS THAT STRENGTHEN AND BURDEN FAMILIES WITH A NEWBORN BABY

EVERYDAY RESOURCES FOR FAMILIES WITH A NEWBORN BABY

Dear mother and father,

Life with a newborn baby can have many delights, but sometimes the everyday life can be hard. It can be useful for the parents to occasionally pause - even in a hurry - to think about their life and to talk about it with each other. Usually this benefits both the child and the whole family.

For this form we have gathered questions which are central to families with a newborn baby. Some of them concern factors that can strengthen the family (alternatives: "Agree" or "Partially agree"), while others concern factors which can strain the everyday life (alternatives: "Disagree" or "Partially disagree"). When you have identified these factors it will probably be easier for you to think about the possible changes in your attitudes or ways of reacting. You can also bring out questions about your family and the strengths in the child health clinic. If you are a single parent you can fill in those parts of the questionnaire that seem relevant.

Choose the alternative which best describes your situation in life.
